QUICK SHEET · CONSTITUTION OF THE FEDERATED REPUBLIC

Article II — The Dual Executive

Two consuls, two domains, one Legislature both must answer to. Neither runs the Republic alone — and neither can be removed the same way.

§2.1–§2.18
Article II + §7.4

THE SPLIT

Legat Consul — EXTERNAL

Domain: military command, external intelligence, foreign affairs and treaties, trade agreements, indigenous-nation relations, defense-domain budget proposal.

4 yrs	12 years	§2.13
TERM · DIRECT ELECTION	LIFETIME MAX · §2.1	REMOVAL PROVISION

CONCURRENT REVIEW

Civic Consul — DOMESTIC

Domain: residual executive authority, domestic policy and regulation, civic-domain budget proposal, civil service, social-state administration.

No fixed	12 years	§2.6
TERM · ASSEMBLY-ELECTED	LIFETIME MAX · §2.5	REMOVAL PROVISION

Both consuls review every bill from the same date of final passage — §2.3.a and §2.7 run on identical 10-business-day clocks. The annual budget itself originates in the Assembly under §12.2 — each Consul submits an NRS-published proposal for their own domain, and a Consul's failure to submit does not delay the budget.

TWO VETOES, DIFFERENT STRENGTH

LC Domain Veto §2.3.a

`Return + grounds` → `Senate 2/3 or lapse`

Either Speaker may request an EM domain assessment.

10	Session
BUS. DAYS	IF LAPSED

CC Suspensive Veto §2.7

`Return + grounds` → `Tabled 1 month` → `Senate 2/3 or re-pass`

10	1 mo	Re-pass
BUS. DAYS	TABLING	IF FAILED

No CC veto for the annual budget, constitutionally required legislation, or emergency legislation. Emergency designation requires 2/3 of the full seated membership of both chambers at final passage; it also bars reconsideration (§2.7).

IF THE CIVIC CONSUL SEAT IS EMPTY — §2.6.A

STAGE 1 · 21 DAYS DEFAULT
Assembly Elects
Absolute majority of full seated membership.

→

STAGE 2 · CARETAKER
Speaker Acts
Speaker acts — existing policy only. No Speaker: longest continuous Assembly service, then age. No veto; a reconsideration notice automatically pauses review for 10 business days.

→

STAGE 3 · BALLOT
Two to Four Advance
The Acting CC runs a ballot without quorum. Two to four advance; a tie exceeding four is resolved by continuous service, then age.

→

STAGE 4 · 45 DEFAULT · 90 MAX
The Nation Votes
Panel runs national RCV within 45 days by default, at most 90 from ballot close. The Assembly may elect by absolute majority before the election begins; once begun, it concludes.

NUMBERS WORTH REMEMBERING

§2.6 — Constructive vote — an absolute majority of the full seated Assembly removes the CC, and must name a successor in the same motion.

§2.8 — Duty of Refusal — civil servants and military members may not comply with orders from either consul that would violate the constitution or statute. Refusal creates no liability. The order may be reported to the EM.

§7.9 — Elected mandates are protected — no act of the Legislature, either executive, any court, any Monitor, or any administrative body may shorten, suspend, or terminate one outside this Constitution's own removal paths.

§2.15 — Federal Prosecution — the CC sets general policy; the Service is independent in individual cases. Any direction on a specific case is published to the NRS.

§2.17 — Executive cooling-off bars service in any executive capacity. This is the express exception to §7.4(5); it does not bar service outside the executive branch.

FOUR MORE LOAD-BEARING MECHANISMS

Council of Ministers §2.14 · §2.14.a

`Both Consuls' officers` → `Meet jointly, standing body` →

`Standing forum — no executive authority`

A joint body, not a CC office — the two sides are constituted differently: the Legat Consul's domain officers (offices defined by statute — Senate-confirmed, Senate-removable by majority, §2.4.a) and the Civic Consul's ministers (appointed at the CC's pleasure, no confirmation, §2.5). They sit together as the standing forum for cross-domain coordination and disputes, with no executive authority. A separate, narrower mechanism (§2.14.a) lets either executive propose a temporary operational lead in a crisis spanning both domains; it takes effect only with both executives' concurrence, and coordinates rather than transfers authority. It also determines executive incapacity under §2.16 — a constitutional function, not executive action.

Emergency Governance §2.11

`Available chamber members` → `Continuity emergency` →

`30 days, renewable; SC review`

When extraordinary circumstances prevent ordinary constitutional government from functioning, either Consul or a majority of available members of either chamber may declare a continuity emergency without quorum, stating the circumstances, publishing to the NRS, and notifying every State and Territory. A chamber able to meet may act without quorum, and alone if the other cannot, solely to preserve essential functions and restore constitutional governance; thresholds are counted from the members able to act. No amendment, term extension outside §7.2.a, or rights derogation outside §1.16. Measures lapse with the emergency unless enacted by statute. The declaration lapses after 30 days unless renewed by the same process; any member or Monitor may seek expedited SC review. Unavailable Consuls are covered by §2.9, §2.16 and §2.9.a. Ordinary procedures resume as soon as they can function.

State Emergency Council §2.9.a · §15.7.a

`Legat succession cannot be reached` → `Emergency Designee + State heads of state` → `Six months, then the States and Territories`

The Elections Panel draws an ordered list of States by public lot each electoral period. If no one in the Legat Consul's order of succession can be reached, the head of state of the first reachable State is the Emergency Designee: commands the military and acts to restore constitutional government. The other reachable heads of state form the State Emergency Council, which directs the Designee and may replace them; both are bound by Article I. Ten days after a §2.11 declaration or the Designee taking office, unreachable seats and Consular offices are vacant; States and Territories may fill their seats by emergency election and the Consuls are filled under §2.9 and §2.6.a. Anyone above the Designee who can act resumes office at once. Both end when each chamber has a majority of seats filled and the Consular offices are filled. After six months, the States and Territories are sovereign and may reconstitute the Republic (§15.7.a, not secession); §1.16.a still binds every government.

Executive Incapacity §2.16

`Majority determines` → `24h ordinary restoration` → `Repeat: 2/3 + review`

Incapacity follows the Consul's declaration or a Council majority with at least five participating. Acting authority passes immediately to the chamber's Speaker, statutory successors, then its senior member (continuous service, then age). Ordinary restoration takes effect 24 hours after NRS publication. A substantially similar recurrence within 90 days needs 2/3; for 30 days restoration needs a deciding-body majority or SC relief. Each chamber may extend that period by simple majority, to at most six months from the renewed determination. If fewer than five Council members are available, legislators from the opposite chamber are drawn by lot to reach five. Incapacity suspends authority, not office (§2.16). Acting officers retain their original mandate but cannot exercise its authority; the selecting body may designate an interim holder of those functions (§7.8).
