QUICK SHEET · CONSTITUTION OF THE FEDERATED REPUBLIC

Article III — The Legislature

Two chambers, one ordinary bill path. The Assembly originates; the Senate reviews and confirms. Constitutional thresholds govern their work, with a limited continuity exception when ordinary government cannot function.

§3.1 – §3.11
12 provisions

THE TWO CHAMBERS

The Assembly

LOWER CHAMBER · §3.1–3.3

Sized by population (Webster method) · min. 1 seat per State/Territory · 2-year terms
All legislation originates in the Assembly
Speaker selected by the Assembly; must hold majority support of full seated membership
Member financial interests disclosed to LM, published to NRS
Expulsion: 2/3 of full seated Assembly · Quorum: absolute majority
Districts drawn by States subject to 5 constitutional criteria (§3.3)

The Senate

UPPER CHAMBER · §3.5–3.6

2 senators per State regardless of population · 6-year staggered terms (3 classes)
Reviews, may amend within the bill's subject matter · Confirms appointments
Member financial interests disclosed to LM, published to NRS
Expulsion: 2/3 of full seated Senate
Treaty ratification: 2/3 of full seated Senate · Trade agreements: majority of both chambers
Participates in the removal processes expressly assigned to it; general removal exclusivity is in §7.5

HOW A BILL BECOMES LAW

Assembly introduces → Single-subject check §3.4 → Assembly vote (abs. majority) → Senate review ≤90 days → Final passage both chambers → Dual consul review 10 bus. days → see Art. II

§3.1 — Senate window
Senate must act within period defined by statute, not to exceed 90 days. Inaction triggers automatic deemed approval — both consuls still review. The Senate may vote (majority of full seated membership) for one extension of up to 30 days on stated cause; no further extension.

§3.4 — Single subject
Every bill addresses one clearly defined subject. Any member or either chamber may request an LM assessment of compliance, published to NRS.

§3.7 — Passage floor
Absolute majority of full seated membership of both chambers. Higher thresholds apply to full seated membership. A simple majority means a majority of members voting, with quorum present. During a continuity emergency, §2.11 waives ordinary quorum and counts these thresholds from the members able to act.

SENATE'S DISTINCT POWERS

ACTION	THRESHOLD
Treaty ratification	2/3 full seated Senate
Treaty withdrawal affirmation	2/3 full seated Senate · ≤90 days
Trade agreement approval	Majority · both chambers
Judicial confirmation (SC and inferior)	Majority of full seated Senate · SC vote ≤120 days
Territorial merger ratification (§15.4)	Simple majority · quorum present
LC domain veto override	2/3 full seated Senate · any time that session
LC domain officer removal	Senate majority of full seated (§2.4.a)
Member expulsion	2/3 full seated Senate

REMOVAL PATHWAYS · §7.5

Only constitutional removal mechanisms, or statutory mechanisms expressly authorized by the Constitution, are available (§7.5). Office-specific procedures govern Consuls, judges, legislators, domain officers, ministers, and independent officers. Criminal liability remains separately pursuable.

DELEGATION · §3.11

Delegation must state its scope, conditions, and duration; statute prevails over any conflicting exercise. The Legislature may rescind at any time. Every exercise is attributed in the NRS to the grant and the exercising authority; the EM audits delegated executive authority (§3.11).

NUMBERS WORTH REMEMBERING

1
Seat minimum per State and Territory — Assembly size otherwise grows with population (Webster method) · 2-year terms

2
Senate seats per State regardless of population · 6-year staggered terms · 3 classes

90
Day ceiling on Senate action on Assembly bills (§3.1) · Also: treaty withdrawal Senate window (§3.6)

§3.8
Legislative oversight · The Legislature may not withhold records, deliberations, votes, or drafts from the Monitors · The LM reviews enacted laws, and pending bills only on a member's request · Members share §7.7 protection from personal civil liability for lawful official acts

NOTABLE PROVISIONS

§3.9 — Independent Agencies
Legislature may establish agencies outside both executives. Qualification standards must be neutral — never designed to exclude candidates for political or policy views or prior criticism of government.

§7.9 — Electoral Mandate Inviolability
An elected mandate may not be shortened, suspended, or terminated except through a mechanism this Constitution provides or authorizes, and no statute may add one, including popular recall (§7.9).

§3.10 — Federal Legislative Competence
Federal power is enumerated: the Legislature may act only within authority assigned by the Constitution and powers reasonably necessary to carry it into effect. Unassigned functions remain with States and local governments, subject to §15.8.a subsidiarity and valid federal minimum standards within federal competence.

A theoretical constitutional design project — not the law of any existing nation.
